DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1 and 8 contain the term "about." The term "about" is a relative term, which renders the claim indefinite. The term "about" is not defined by the claim, the specification does not provide a standard for ascertaining the requisite degree, and one of ordinary skill in the art would not be reasonably apprised of the scope of the invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Atkins

Ready-to-Drink Shakes (Product Alert, Nov. 13, 2000).

The ready-to-drink product of Atkins anticipates the instant claims. Applicants refer to the Atkins product in their specification on pages 1, 2, 6, and 13, whereby it appears that applicants are using the Atkins formula to create the claimed product. The Nutrition Fact list for the Café au Lait shake, obtained from the Internet (www.atkinscenter.com), provides the ingredients and amounts.

Claims 1-3, and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Atkins Shake Mix (New York Times, Jan. 11, 2000) in light of Atkins Cappuccino Shake Mix label.

The Times articles sets forth a date when Atkins Mix was in use. The label discloses the ingredients of the mix. Because the phrase "ready-to-drink" is broad (in view of the specification), the prepared (hydrated) Atkins mix anticipates the above claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4 and 6-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Atkins Ready-to-Drink Shakes.

Atkins Ready-to-Drink Shake does not contain all the claimed ingredients, i.e., the mix of oils, the mix of proteins or the DMP. All of the ingredients are commonly used in the food industry and are notoriously well known. It would have been obvious to those of ordinary skill in the art to use the claimed ingredients in the disclosed shake because those in the food art will modify the ingredients in a recipe in order to obtain the most economical and acceptable product for the consumer.

Applicants' attention is invited to In re Levin, 84 U.S.P.Q. 232 and the cases cited therein, which are considered in point in the fact situation of the instant case, and wherein the Court stated on page 234 as follows:

This court has taken the position that new recipes or formulas for cooking food which involve the addition or elimination of common ingredients, or for treating them in ways which differ from the former practice, do not amount to invention, merely because it is not disclosed that, in the constantly developing art of preparing food, no one else ever did the particular thing upon which the applicant asserts his right to a patent. In all such cases, there is nothing patentable unless the applicant by a proper showing further establishes a coaction or cooperative relationship between the selected ingredients which produces a new, unexpected, and useful function. In re Benjamin D. White, 17 C.C.P.A. (Patents) 956, 39 F.2d 974, 5 U.S.P.Q. 267; In re Mason et al., 33 C.C.P.A. (Patents) 1144, 156 F.2d 189, 70 U.S.P.Q. 221.

Claims 4 and 6-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Atkins Shake Mix (New York Times, Jan. 11, 2000) in light of Atkins Cappuccino Shake Mix label.

Atkins Shake Mix does not contain all the claimed ingredients, i.e., the mix of oils, the mix of proteins or the DMP. All of the ingredients are commonly used in the food industry and are notoriously well known. It would have been obvious to those of ordinary skill in the art to use the claimed ingredients in the disclosed shake because those in the food art will modify the ingredients in a recipe in order to obtain the most economical and acceptable product for the consumer. Applicants' attention is again invited to In re Levin.
